War Comes

And America Meets It

For the 3,000 American sailors, soldiers and civilians killed or wounded in the treacherous attack upon Honolulu Sunday the government and the people of the United States will exact the supreme tribute from Japan—we will destroy her. This much lies within our power, for a certainty. And this much we will do.

The traditions of Europe are old and confusing, we having had no hand in their making.

Adkins Banquet Here Tuesday Is Postponed

Spencer to Washington; Ticket Price to Be Refunded by C. C.

R. P. Bowen, secretary of the Hope Chamber of Commerce, announced here Monday morning that the appreciation banquet for Governor Homer M. Adkins had been indefinitely postponed.

Mr. Bowen said that Col. D. C. Cabel, commanding officer of the Southwestern Proving Ground, called him Sunday night and asserted that the War Department had issued orders that all activity of that kind be abandoned.

The banquet was to have been held in the Proving Ground cafeteria and several hundred tickets had already been sold for Tuesday night.

Anderson's Statement

Roy Anderson, president of Hope Chamber of Commerce, issued the following statement at noon Monday: "Events this week-end compel us to abandon our Appreciation Banquet for Governor Adkins which was scheduled to be held Tuesday night at the cafeteria of the Southwestern Proving Ground.

"The Chamber of Commerce wishes to express its appreciation for the prompt action of Col. D. C. Cabel, commanding officer of the Proving Ground, in notifying us Sunday night what orders had been issued from Washington cancelling all social activities—following Japan's declaration of war upon us Sunday afternoon.

"Senator Spencer, who was to have introduced Governor Adkins, has been recalled to Washington; and it is entirely unlikely that Governor Adkins himself could attend the banquet in view of the new problems raised for a governor by the national emergency.

"Notwithstanding all this, the chamber of commerce is hopeful that at some future date we may be able to carry out our original plans for a testimonial dinner to Governor Adkins, mindful of his interest in this section of the state, and of his many close friends here.

"About 200 tickets already have been sold for the banquet. Ticket-holders are asked to call at the chamber offices in the city hall, and their money will be refunded."

Senator Lloyd Spencer who was to have introduced Governor Adkins left Sunday night for Washington. The Senator left by automobile for Memphis where he and other members of congress boarded a plane Monday morning for the capital.

Spencer's Statement

Peace on Earth — Even in Industry

"We've done every thing possible to settle our differences with Japan peaceably.

"My idea is to eliminate Japan as far as possible because later we might have to take on Germany.

"The president has done everything in his power to avert a crisis but Japan seems determined to fight and we might just as well get it over with."

"Certainly it is better to fight Japan alone now before the three Axis powers have a chance to unite their war forces against one foe."

Many Planes Lost, Other Ships Damaged

Philippines Attacked Monday; Japs Claim Smashing Victory

WASHINGTON — (P)—A war declaration was drafted for congress Monday and at the same time the United States has made it so.

We opened up Japan to modern commerce and industry. We traded in peace with China, and with the islands of the South Sea.

All was well until the Army chiefs of Japan were seized with the plague of conquest. Disregarding the popular vote of Japan they went onto the mainland of Asia with their armies. They invaded their country in a disastrous war with China, and when the Japanese parliament voted "no confidence" in the cabinet the Army chiefs dissolved parliament. The Army chiefs did this no less than four times—so that we have known for the last year or two that popular will had nothing to do with the acts of the Japanese government.

We had hoped, however, that actual war would be averted because the Japanese Navy had a known record of respect for American naval power.

But the war clique spread to the Japanese Navy—and it was their treacherous sortie against Hawaii Sunday that plunged the Western world into war.

Japan, like Britain, is an island empire, subject to destruction only from the sea. But unlike Britain, she is not the sea power nor the resources at home nor the dominions abroad to sustain her in a fight with a major power—much less an America now angered, united, and thirsting for vengeance.

We have before us the memory of 3,000 fellow citizens killed or wounded by treachery while standing duty at the nation's western outpost.

And, in the broader view, we have the strict duty to destroy this war-monger so that all the other peoples of the Pacific may continue to live in that peace for which this great ocean once was named.

Press and radio turn out to be great collaborators in an emergency.

I got the first flash of the Japanese attack upon Hawaii from a Columbia Broadcasting System announcement (incidentally CBS seems to have scooped all the other radio systems).

The bulletins, however, quoted both CBS reporters and Associated Press correspondents as all agencies pooled the available news.

It remains a fact, however, that people ordinarily don't listen to the radio Sunday afternoon—for the news was there for them but they didn't get it.

Our crowd came down to the Star office Sunday afternoon rigged up to see the Associated Press wire, got the full story, and put out an extra at 4:30 p. m. It sold 1,500 copies—obviously catching the public flat-footed.

A second extra, however, would have "died." For thereafter the public had its ear glued to the radio.

But it was a good example of how press and radio work together in a crisis—and they worked together all over the Pacific and the United States this fatal Sunday.

Settlement of the railroad wage dispute, by dint of 34 hours of continuous conference and within five days of a disastrous national strike, averts once more a major threat to the national defense plans. At the time of the railway settlement, the OPM reported only three strikes involving 1700 workers which were directly hampering defense production. We go into the Christmas season, if not with peace on earth, at least with comparative peace in our own field of industrial controversy.

While the rail situation came unpleasantly close to strike, and while agreement was reached only after the most strenuous mediation efforts, nevertheless the country had some confidence all along that the disastrous strike would not be allowed to develop. Why?

Fateful Far East

Whirl of events has catapulted the islands and nations of the Orient into a major position in world affairs. Turn your eyes west, across the Pacific, for a quick look at the Far East.

1. Has Britain any naval bases on the Asiatic mainland east of India?

2. Is it further from U. S. air base at Unalaska (Dutch Harbor) to Japan than it is from Manila?

3. From what three Chinese cities did U. S. withdraw marines?

4. Is Borneo, Bali or Batavia the capital of the Dutch East Indies? Name some of the riches there coveted by Japan.

5. In what Far East nations are the following: Saigon, Buvina Road, Bangkok, Penang, Surabaya?

Britain, Canada Quickly Declare War on Japan

Churchill Lives Up to Pledge; Many Others to Follow

LONDON — (P)—Britain like the United States under a Japanese attack declared war Monday on the Tokyo government without waiting for Washington first to formulate an American declaration.

Said the Prime Minister:

"It only remains now for two great democracies to face their task with whatever strength God may give them."

Churchill told the house of commons that instruction had been forwarded to the British embassy at Tokyo and that at 1 p. m. (7 a. m. EST) Monday a note was handed to the Japanese chargé d'affaires here stating that in view of Japan's "wanton acts of unprovoked aggression" the British government informs them that a state of war existed between the two nations.

Churchill recalled that with the full approval of the nation and of the empire "I pledge the word of Great Britain about a month ago that should the United States be involved in war with Japan, Britain's declaration would follow within the hour."

Churchill declared that Britain had assured Thailand that an attack on her "will be regarded as an attack on us."

By the Associated Press

Canada declared war upon Japan late Sunday night after a 4-hour cabinet meeting and thus added within a 24-hour period four axis aligned nations to the list of her enemies.

Other declarations of war against Japan have come from the Netherlands East Indies and Costa Rica.

China and Australia have reached a decision to enter the war on the side of the United States.

Philippines Attacked

MANILA — (P)—Japanese bombers struck at military bases and ports the length of the Philippines Monday smashing at the big fort of Stotsbury Clark field, the summer mountain capital at Baguio, the fort of Davao and Aparsi and the far northern Batan Island group.

Manila had no air raid shelter, was blacked out from soon after dusk. Other ports also shut off lights and waited tensely.

Hope Fans Back Milan Creighton Would Replace Thomsen as Uni- versity Coach

Former students of the University of Arkansas Monday went on record as backers of Milan S. Creighton for the position of head coach of the Razorbacks, replacing Fred Thomsen who th. board of trustees will probably oust in the near future.

Local backers released the following memorandum on Creighton:

Milan S. Creighton was a student at the University of Arkansas from 1927 through 1931, where he experienced a brilliant scholastic and athletic career. A native of Goshen, Nebraska, his accomplishments at the University are even more remarkable when it is remembered that Creighton worked his way through College.

Milan played guard for the Razorbacks during his Sophomore year, receiving honorable mention for all conference honors at that post. During his junior and senior seasons, Creighton was stationed at the left flank. The year Wren Schoonover made All American selection, Milan played his Schoonover's end defensively throughout the year. As Captain of the Razorbacks in 1930, Creighton was awarded all Conference honors at left end.

Milan's versatility was not restricted to football alone. He was three year letterman in basketball, being named as All-Conference guard in 1929 and 1930. Milan was Captain of the track team during 1929-'30 season. In 1930 Creighton tied for top honors as having done the most for the University of Arkansas, as a result of which he received a half interest in little Oscar I, Oscar I having been awarded to Wren Schoonover in 1929 for the same honor. In his social life on the campus he was equally outstanding. Milan was a member of the Sigma Nu social fraternity and the Blue Key national honorary fraternity.

It is appropriate that we mention a few of Milan's outstanding teammates. Jack Dale, nine years coach at Paragould, now retired to business at Paragould, Hollis Buckalew, now a practicing physician of the State, Clyde Van Sickle, present Freshman Coach at the University, Clarence Geis, present Coach at Little Rock High School, Jo Chambers, formerly of Stuttgart and now a representative of a nationally known sporting goods house, Bull Irwin, of McGehee, where he is a practicing attorney and member of the State Legislature, Dandy Dick Miller, physician at Fayetteville, Wren Schoonover of All-American fame. There are many others.

Continuing further with Creighton's football experience, we find that in 1931 Milan played end for the Chicago Cardinals in the National Professional football league. The Cardinals were Coached by one of the All-American greats, Ernie Nevers, a former student of Pop Warner and employed the double wing back formation.

1932-Milan played end for the Cardinals under Jack Chevigney, one of Knute Rockne's prize pupils, employing quite naturally, the Rockne or Notre Dame System.

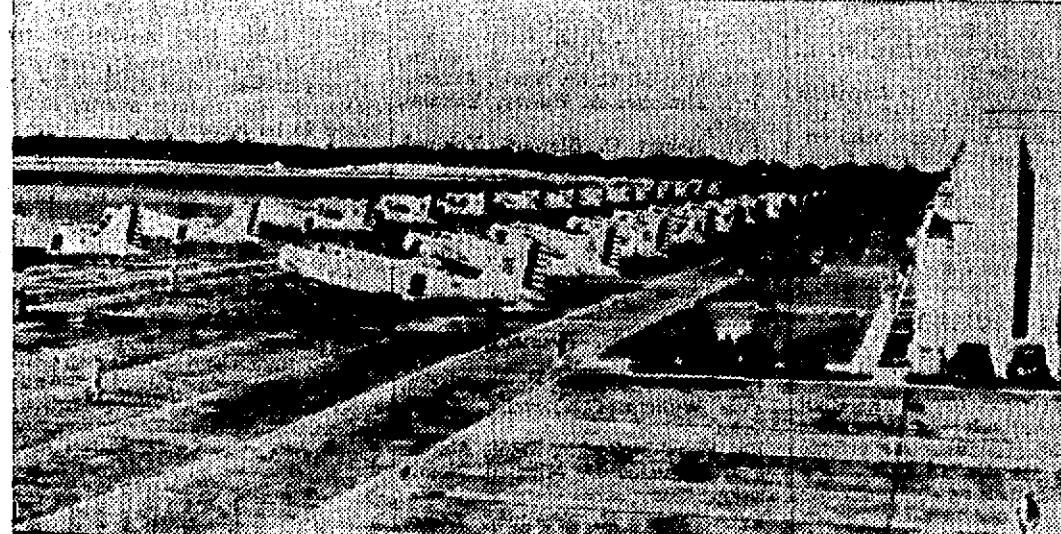

1933 and '34 Milan again played end for the Cardinals but under Paul Schissler, formerly seven years at Oregon State. Schissler used the short punt and box formation.

In 1935 Creighton was called back from the Pacific Coast to find that he had been named the Coach of the Chicago Cardinals himself. The rise of Milan S. Creighton in football ranks is probably better illustrated by an article entitled "Miracle Man of Football" appearing in the Chicago Herald-Examiner in November, 1935, and written by Edgar Munzel. There may be found the story that Milan Creighton at the ripe old age of twenty-seven became the youngest Coach in professional football ranks and perhaps in College circles.

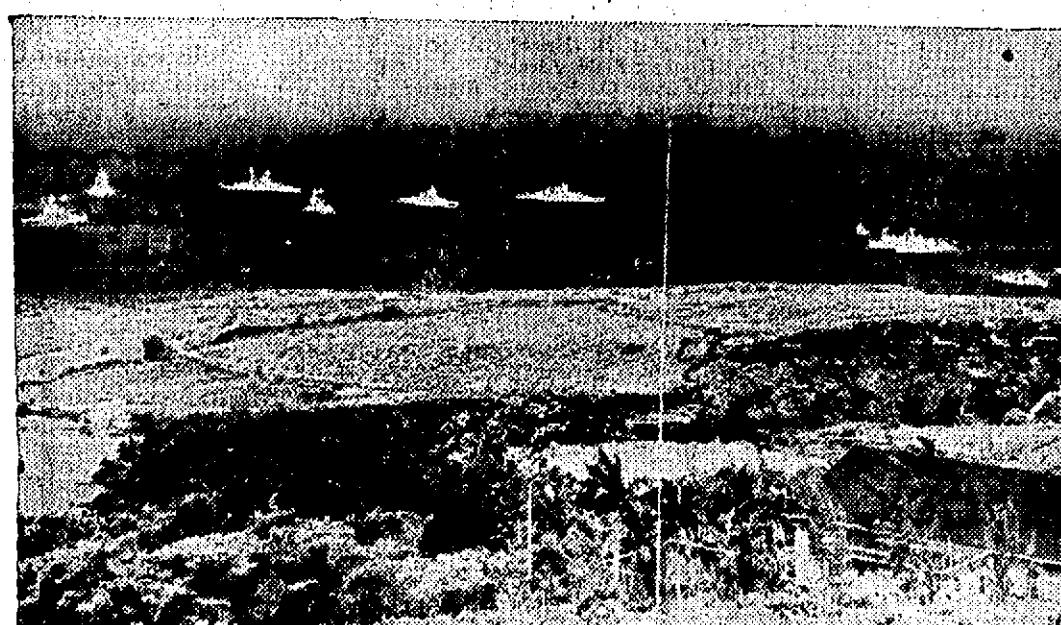

Milan continued as head Coach of the Cardinals until he retired from the professional game in 1938, after a successful eight year career. Basically, he employed a single-wing back formation with an unbalanced line, featuring good running and passing game in conjunction with man in motion variations, at times working in a wide open spread formation, which is highly effective and thrilling to watch. A sound fundamentalist, Creighton is a great believer in safety tackling and hard and vicious blocking.

LADY BY REQUEST

THE STORY: The climax of many scenes of Diana Curr's life is her meeting with Adela, her former friend, when the two women are separated. Richard Thorpe, Diana's husband, and Adela are separated, but Thorpe and Adela are still together. Adela finds them together, is shocked, and decides to leave. She and Adela are separated, even though Adela has $32,000 in inheritance which she did not receive unless he married her. Adela's friends are Phil Bruce, Stephen's best friend, who is strongly attracted to Evelyn Thorpe, beautiful and kind. Stephen loves Diana, but believes Stephen loves "Dear Diana" when her plot to discredit his wife has worked. "I love your flesh, Diana," and I'm going to fight for him!"

PREPARATIONS FOR DEPARTURE

CHAPTER XVIII
IT was three days later that Stephen told Diana he must go away. He had been appointed by the United States government as the most capable man to investigate the operation of airways to South America for the Commerce Department.

His plan, he told Diana in that impersonal tone he had adopted toward her, was to fly by way of the Pan American clipper service to Cristobal, there changing to a large Sikorsky amphibian to complete the journey along the coast of Ecuador and Colombia. He explained it all in detail, using that detached icy voice that had been apparent in all his relations with her since the night she had run to Richard Thorpe's lodge.

"But, won't there be danger?" she asked, her eyes wide with fear.

Stephen laughed shortly. "No more than on any air trip. It'll be great," he went on, forgetting his animosity for a moment in the contemplation of his adventure. "I've always meant to travel that route. It spells romance, excitement, and adventure to me. The Trail of the Conquistadores!"

"You'll be gone a whole month!"

Stephen's face sobered. "Yes, it can't be helped. I know what you're thinking—about the divorce. It wouldn't be fair to hold you much longer. And—and I had no right to judge you the other night. Your life is your own affair. But could you, as a special favor, hang on and look after things here until I return?"

Diana turned to the window and looked out, and Stephen came to stand close behind her. His voice was low and a bit husky. His hearts all but destroyed the calm she was trying so hard to maintain.

"If this hadn't come up, things would have gone on smoothly. The divorce would have gone forward without a hitch. I hate to ask of you."

She turned to face him. "I am glad to stay, Stephen, as long as you need me. To help you in any way I can. I'm happy and comfortable here."

"Are you, Diana?"

"Yes, of course. When you come back will be quite soon enough to think of the—the divorce."

SHE said it quite stiffly and primly, because her heart was behaving so tumultuously. She did not want to leave at all. She wanted to stay on forever with Stephen Curr, surrounded by his solicitude. Even in spite of his belief that she had gone willingly to Richard Thorpe, whom she despised with all the force of her being. Even if he considered her a Judas in her relations with Evelyn Thorpe! Yes, in spite of everything, she wanted more than he'd ever guess to stay right here. Somehow she'd make him believe in her again. Life couldn't be cruel enough to deny her that!

But Stephen had drawn back imperceptibly at her tone, thinking her disappointed, but resigned to the delay.

"Thank you," he said stiffly, then spoke utterly amazing words: "You will consider yourself the head of this household, then, while I am away."

Diana could scarcely believe her ears, knowing how furious Adela would be at any such arrangement. "Oh, but I couldn't—I'd rather not!"

He smiled a little bleakly. "As another special favor, then, Adela is irresponsible—needs a guiding hand badly. I wouldn't trust things to her alone. She's spoiled, always has had her own way so much that now she's lacking in judgment. You must promise me to look after her, Diana."

She stood silent for a moment, absorbing the irony of his request. At last she spoke slowly. "And you'd ask this of me, believing that—that I'm having an affair with Richard Thorpe, the husband of my dearest friend?"

He flushed hotly. "I have only the evidence of my own eyes," he reminded her. "You have never troubled to make any explanation, you know!"

Babies' Bones

The bones of babies born in the fall are stronger, more mature, and have greater mineral content than those of babies born in other months, scientific evidence reveals. The varied diet and sunshine enjoyed by the mother in the summer months is believed to be responsible.
